When Kim Gold was a teenager, she was very shy and afraid to meet new people. Her best friend, Diana, wanted to help her make new friends. One day, Diana said, "I have an idea. We both like sports and you're really good at basketball. Let's join the school basketball team together. We'll meet new people there."

At first Kim did not want to go but finally Diana convinced* her to try. Kim had a great time and she began to make friends. The kids on the team liked her very much and asked her to be the captain of the team. This was the beginning of her career as a basketball player.

Kim, now age 28, wrote this book because she wants young people to know how important friends are. She writes about how special friendships can change your life.

"A book all teenagers must read!"

Tell Me is a website for teenagers around the world. We asked our readers to tell us about birthdays in their country. Here are two email messages that we received.

Subject: Birthdays around the world

Hi everyone,

In my country, we have a special birthday lunch with our grandparents, aunts and uncles. At lunch, we eat long noodles for a long life and for good luck.

In China, children get money or presents for their birthday. It's bad luck to give someone a clock or a watch for his or her birthday. My family always gives me money. Tomorrow is my birthday and I know what I'm going to buy!

Hello everyone,
Birthdays are special for kids in Sweden. I love birthdays because I can stay in bed in the morning. In Sweden, parents bring kids breakfast in bed. They usually make pancakes for breakfast. Then the family gives us presents. It's fun to open them in bed.
Last year, our neighbor made a cake for my birthday. Our birthday cakes have lots of fruit and cream on the top – delicious!
We also put the Swedish flag on the roof of the house. This means that someone in the house has a birthday.

Wild Rides by Max Miles

For many people, there is only one reason to go to an amusement park*: the roller coaster. Some people call it the "scream machine". There is a good reason for this. You scream on the way up, on the way down, and especially when you go upside down.

Professor Rob Chapman from City University interviewed 654 visitors (ages 13-19) in different amusement parks around the U.S.A. Chapman wanted to find out what teenagers think about riding roller coasters.

First, Professor Chapman found out that the roller coaster is the most popular ride. About 80 percent of teenagers think that the roller coaster is the best ride at the amusement park. Jane Hill, 16, said, "I like the amusement park because of the roller coaster. It is my favorite ride. I really like roller coasters because they are exciting."

Second, Chapman asked riders what makes roller coasters so exciting. Most riders said that roller coasters were exciting for two reasons: the speed and the feeling of danger. Bill Green, 19, explained, "Roller coasters go really fast and feel dangerous but I know that they are safe. I like the feeling of danger."

Finally, Chapman learned that riders like to sit in different parts of the roller coaster. There are three kinds of riders and each kind has a name. (See the graph.) The Crazy Riders always sit in the front and put their hands up in the air. The Safe Riders prefer sitting in the middle where it is less frightening. The Noisy Riders sit anywhere and scream from the beginning to the end of the ride. However, people who do not like to ride roller coasters also have a name. They are called Ground Riders!

So why do people ride roller coasters again and again? Roller coaster riders say that they are looking for the perfect ride: the biggest, the fastest and the most frightening!
