Teenagers and Free Time

1

What do you do in your free time? This was the question that a group of researchers* asked. They wanted to know what teenagers do in the hours when they are not sleeping, not in school and not at work.

2

The researchers asked teenagers in the United States and Europe three questions: How much free time do you have each day? What do you do in your free time? Why is free time important to you?

3

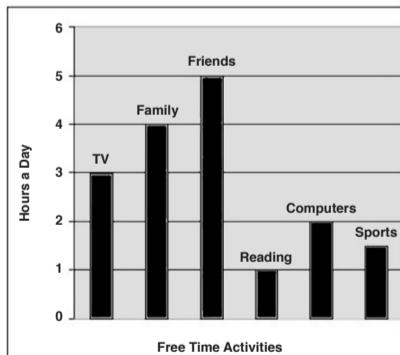

The researchers found that American and European teens have a lot of free time. Teens are free during almost half of their waking hours**.

4

The results also show that teenagers do a lot of different activities in their free time. American and European teenagers spend about three hours watching TV every day but less than one hour a day reading. Teenagers also enjoy spending time with family and friends, playing computer games, and doing sports. You can see this in the graph below.

5

Finally, the researchers found that free time is very important to teens. In their free time they can play and take part in activities that they enjoy. Taking part in free time activities helps teens to relax after a long day at school or work. The researchers suggest that every teen should take part in at least two or three free time activities. So why don't you make free time an important part of your day?

Karen: How was your vacation, Sammy?

Sammy: It was great, Karen. Would you like to see some photos?

Karen: Oh, yes. I'd love to.

Sammy: Here I am in the first photo, in the hotel lobby. On the first day of our vacation, the weather was bad. It rained all day and we stayed inside.

Karen: Did the weather get better after that?

Sammy: Yes. The next day was sunny and warm. Here, look at the second picture.

Karen: Oh! You're hiking through the hills. The trees and flowers look so beautiful.

Sammy: Yes, it was a wonderful place, and it was so quiet.

Karen: And what did you do after that?

Sammy: On the third day, we decided to go snorkeling so we went to the beach.

Karen: Snorkeling?

Sammy: You know – swimming under water with a special mask to breathe. We saw beautiful, colorful fish. You can see my sister snorkeling in the picture.

Karen: Yes, she seems to be having fun.

Sammy: And here's the last picture. That was when we went to an art museum. Look – here we are in front of the museum.

Karen: Ooh, that sounds interesting. What kind of paintings did you see?

Sammy: We saw some famous paintings and some modern art, too. It was really interesting.

Karen: What a great vacation! Thanks for showing me your photos, Sammy.

Sammy: You're welcome.

Tape text:

Tom: Hello, I'm Tom Johnson. Welcome to our radio program, You Can Make a Change. Today, my guest is Rona Parker, a student at Kenmore Junior High School. Hello, Rona.

Rona: Hello, Tom.

Tom: Rona, you've started a group called No to Bullies. What are bullies?

Rona: Bullies are kids who hurt and frighten children at school. Some bullies take the other kids' money and books. Other bullies push and hit the children. They sometimes also call them horrible names.

Tom: I see – and when did you start your group, Rona?

Rona: Umm, about six months ago. Some friends and I decided that it was time to stop the bullies.

Tom: Good for you! What did you do?

Rona: Well, first we talked to the bullies and told them to stop hurting other kids. Then, we talked to the kids at school and showed them how to stand up to the bullies.

Tom: What do you mean, "stand up to the bullies"?

Rona: Well, I mean kids should just say, "Stop it now!" and walk away. Because if a kid doesn't do anything and just cries, the bully will want to hurt him more.

Tom: Well, that's a great idea, Rona. And has your group made a change?
Do kids feel better about coming to school now?

Rona: Oh, yes. Now most kids aren't afraid to come to school. They know how to stand up to bullies. Also, more kids are joining our group.

Tom: Well Rona, thank you for telling us about your group, No to Bullies. You've really made a change at your school.

עכשו תשמעו את השיחה פעם נוספת.
