Emojis are simple, little pictures. People all over the world use them when they send short messages to each other online. The first emojis were invented in 1999, in Japan.

5 The idea came from weather programs on television. These programs use symbols*, like a bright yellow sun or grey clouds, to show the weather. Emojis are also symbols, and people can use them to communicate many different feelings. It doesn't matter where you
10 come from – Israel, England, Japan – everyone can understand the "emoji language".

Some language experts are worried about the future of written language. They worry because it is easier to send emojis than to write words. These experts think people will use emojis all the time, and stop writing 15 complete sentences. As a result, correct spelling and good grammar may soon disappear.

However, other language experts think that emojis are useful. When you add emojis to messages, it is just like seeing the expressions on people's faces when they are talking. Emojis and facial expressions both 20 add meaning to messages. Think of the following text messages: "I had a cheese sandwich for breakfast 😊" and "I had a cheese sandwich for breakfast 😞". They have very different meanings.

Emoji comes from two Japanese words: e + moji.

'e', means picture and 'moji', means symbol.

From Lexis Online Dictionary

No matter what the experts think, more and more people are using emojis each year. These little symbols appear in millions of messages every day, all around the world. Clearly, they are here to stay.

- a which emojis are pictures and which are symbols
- b what the words 'e' and 'moji' are in English
- c what the words 'e' and 'moji' sound like in Japanese

TASK 3 משימה 3

Read the following text and answer the questions in English.

קראו את הטקסט שלפניכם, וענו באנגלית על השאלות.

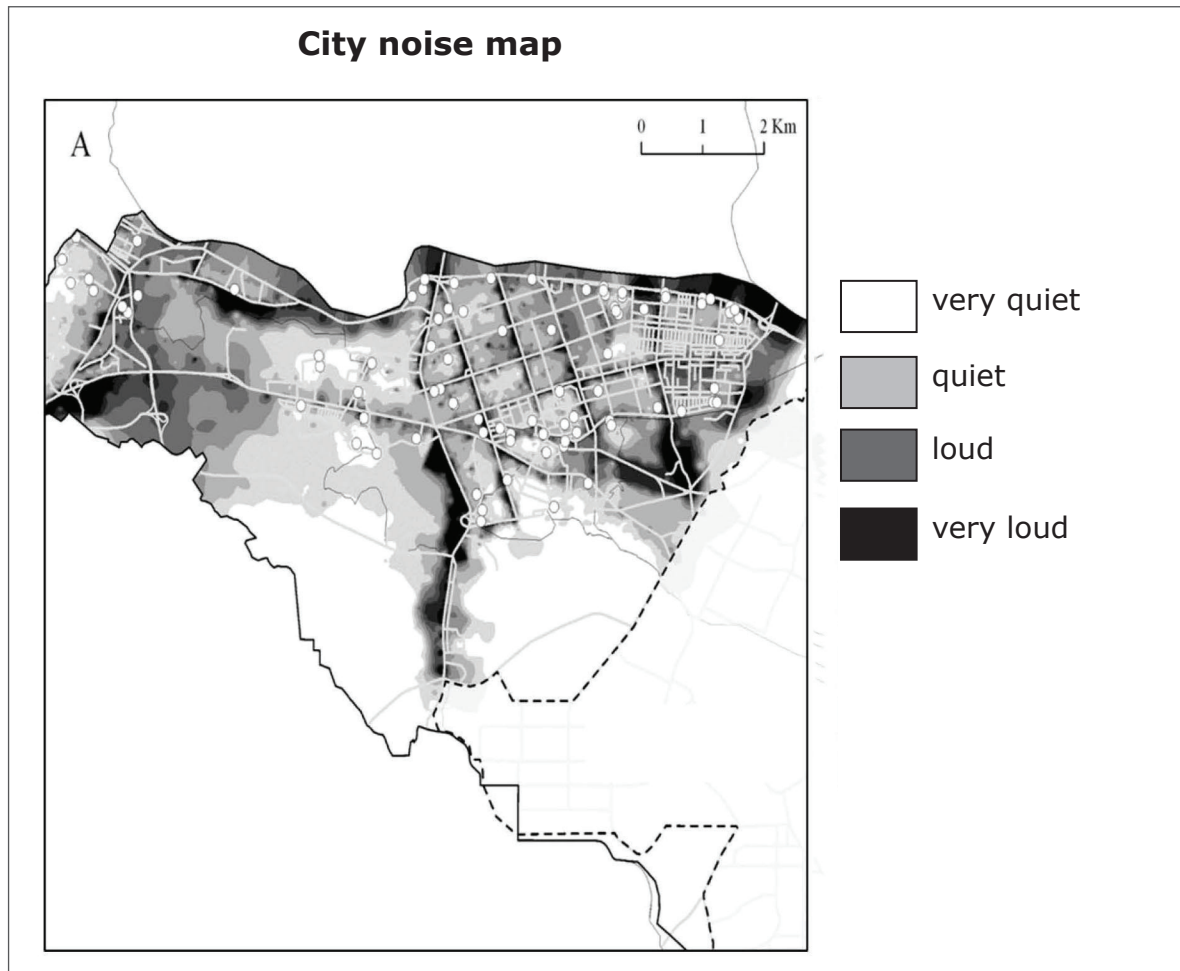

We live in a noisy world. When you walk down a city street, what can you hear? You probably won't hear birds singing or the wind in the trees. You will hear the noise of cars, buses and trucks as they move along the road. This noise can even be heard inside – in offices and homes. Of course, it is not just noise from roads that makes life uncomfortable. We all have neighbors who play loud music or have parties late at night. It is often impossible to find a quiet place to work or rest.

Fortunately, in Israel there are laws* that can help stop the noise our neighbors make. The laws say that neighbors must not make a lot of noise between eleven at night and seven in the morning. Also, between two and four in the afternoon everyone must be quiet so people can rest or sleep. However, stopping the noise from cars and buses is much more difficult and even more important. According to recent studies, noise can make us very sick. For example, it can stop us sleeping well and also cause heart problems.

Scientists are now working on ways to deal with this serious problem. They begin by finding out where the noise is worst. To do this, they put microphones in streets and connect them to computers. The information they get is used to make "noise maps" which show the different levels of noise in different areas in our cities (see example of a noise map on the next page).

In places where they see the highest level of noise, the scientists suggest making those areas quieter by putting a special material on the roads. This is like putting a carpet on the floor in your home to make it quiet when you walk. Scientists also suggest that cars, buses and trucks should be made with a different type of engine. Using engines that are much quieter would make a very big difference to our lives. Both these suggestions will cost a lot of money, but the health of many people is definitely worth the high cost.

* laws – חוקים

 levels – עוצמות

 engine – מנוע

14.

Why does the writer ask "What can you hear?" (lines 1-2)
To make you think about ____.

- a the problem of crossing city roads
- b the importance of being in nature
- c the level of noise in your environment
- d the amount of noise people make at home

15.

The laws described in lines 10-13 were made because ____.

- a people should not play music in their cars
- b people can't sleep when there are loud noises
- c it is important that people go to bed early
- d cars and buses make too much road noise

16.

According to lines 13-14, stopping the noise from cars and buses is much more difficult than stopping the noise ____.

- a our neighbors make
- b our computers make
- c from microphones
- d from outside the city

17.

- a. According to the text, how do scientists collect the information to make noise maps?

- b. According to the text, what useful information could scientists get from a noise map?

In lines 25-26, the example of a carpet is given because ____.

- a it shows how materials on the ground can stop noise
- b it shows why it is so expensive to make roads quieter
- c everyone should make their homes less noisy
- d it is a good material to use on our roads

19.

Fill in the missing information in the chart, according to the text.
