Hello everyone. I'm Goldy Stein, and today I'm talking to Sara Levy, who has just come back from visiting with her family in California. She's going to tell us about a very unusual museum that they visited there. Hello, Sara.

Hello, Goldy.

So, tell me about the museum you went to.

It's called the International Banana Museum. Everything on display there - telephones, clocks, chairs - is in the shape of bananas. It has 25,000 objects, which makes it the largest museum in the world that focuses on only one fruit. There are other fruit museums in America and in other countries – in fact, there's a museum about oranges here in Israel. But this museum is not like any other museum I've ever visited. You know, in most museums you learn interesting things. But the Banana Museum is only meant to make you smile and laugh.

It does sound unusual… Do you know anything about its history?

Yes. It was opened almost 50 years ago by a man called Ken Bannister, the owner of a company that made cameras. In 1972, Bannister went to a conference where many companies were showing the equipment they made to take photographs. There were hundreds of people there, and he decided to give everyone a picture of a banana.

Really? Why would anyone do that?

Bannister did it as a joke. He thought that because a banana has the shape of a smile it might encourage people to smile. And, surprisingly, people at the conference loved the picture – they said it did make them smile and feel happier. After the conference, many of them started sending him things in the shape of a banana. Soon he had thousands of banana-shaped objects from all over the world. So, he decided to set up the museum.

So you decided you wanted to see this funny museum?

Actually, I wasn't planning to go there – I didn't even know it existed… I was with my husband and kids in the United States, and we were going to visit my aunt. We were driving to her city when we saw giant signs by the road. They looked like bananas, and invited people to the International Banana Museum, which was just five minutes away. So we decided to go there, and we all really enjoyed ourselves. I even bought clothes there that make you look like a banana, and the kids wore them on Purim.

Sounds like a great place to have fun. Thanks for telling us about it, Sara. Goodbye everyone.
