How to Get Your Lost Wallet Back*

by Ruth Smiley

When you find a wallet in the street, do you return it to the owner or do you keep it?
Dr. Baker and scientists from London University did an experiment to find out what people do when they find a wallet. The scientists put 200 wallets in different places in London. In some of the wallets, there was a picture of a baby or a puppy. In other 5 wallets, there was a thank-you letter to the owner for volunteering at a hospital. In all the wallets, there was the home address of Dr. Baker. There was no money in any of the wallets.

The scientists thought they would get back only a few wallets, but the results of the experiment surprised them. People sent back almost 90% of the wallets with the baby 10 pictures! They also returned 53% of the wallets with the puppy pictures. However, the scientists got back only 20% of the wallets with the letter.

Dr. Baker is not sure why the pictures influenced so many people. "Maybe the pictures made them feel they wanted to help the owner," says Dr. Baker. However, he is sure about one thing: If you want to get your lost wallet back, keep a picture of 15 a cute baby in it!
